of debate on the great currency question. The very pressing character of our political affairs, in the opinion of the majority of the House, demand an immediate and energetic action. The question before the House will, by many, be regarded as identical with instructions, although our Representatives are but earnestly requested to carry out our Currency Resolutions of the last Session, by voting for the Sub-Treasury Bill now before Congress. It is the impression of many that instructions have never before been attempted in South Carolina, and that we are now making an innovation upon established usago. This however is an error. In 1827 the Legislature passed Resolutions instructing our Senators in Congress, and requesting our Representatives to vote in a particular way upon the Tariff. It is certainly false ground to assume, as has been done by some, that there is a material difference in the resolutions. So far as the principle is concerned, they are identical. There is no strength in the position, that in the one case our Senators and Representatives were with us in opinion, and in the other are opposed to us; or a portion of them. There is certainly no greater hardship in saying that a man who is in a minority shall not vote against his constituents, than that a man who is in the majority, as were our Representatives in 1827, shall not change his opinion according to the honest convictions of his judgement- In both cases it is the same in principle. In both, the Representative is told that he shall not vote against the opinion of the majority, and the despotism, if despotism it be, is as great in the one case as in the other. Quite an interesting discussion is now going on. Davie introduced the Resolutions, and Petigrue, Davie, Toomer, Adams, H. H. Thompson, Wallace Thompson & others have participated in the discussion. After so thorough a discussion at the last session, it is not to be expected that any new light would be shed upon the subject. But the discussion though not so full as formerly, is notwithstanding able .--- Rhett has this moment taken the floor upon a substitute for the Resolutions, which in substance is the same, and from his beginning will as usual no doubt make a strong and manly effort. Rhett has concluded and Myers is upon the floor for the second time. Meminger has taken the floor and you know him well enough to rest assured that he will sustain himself. But I must close, as the mail will soon leave me.

Miscellaneous.

All the papers and journals are filled with praises of Lockhart's life of Scott .-We read some time stace an excellent life of the great Magician by Allen, which appears to have attracted little notice; we think it a more impartial work than the recent one by his son-in-law. Lockhart from his relationship, is disposed to throw Scott's imperfections into deep shadow. Scott was a tory, and consequently a supporter of arbitrary power. But he was kind and forbearing and very urbane in his intercourse with his literary brethren. He seemed to dwell in an atmosphere above the storms which so often agitate the lower world, in the republic of letters. Let plodders say what they will, we consider writers of his class as benefactors to the human race .-By his wizard spell, the author of Waverry conjures away the demon of melancholy, and transports us into the regions of fairy land. He etherializes the spirit & converts life itself into poetry. We do not know when we have seen any thing more beautiful than the closing scene in the life of this amiable man. It is an end worthy of a poet. He was in troth, a dying swan, who poured fourth his soul in one last melodious

"His strain, it had a dying, dying fall."

"As I was dressing on the morning of Monday, the 17th of September, Nicholson came into my room and told me that his master had awoke in a state of composure and consciousness, and wished to see me immediately. I found him entirely himself though in the last extreme of feebleness. his eye was clear and calm-every trace of the wild fire of delirium extinguished,-'Lockart,' said he, 'I may have but a minute to speak to you. My dear, be a good man-be virtuous-be religious-be a good man. Nothing else will give you comfort, when you come to lie here. He paused, and I said, 'shall I send for Sophia and Ann!' 'No,' said he, 'don't disturb them. Poor sonls! I know they were up all night
—God bless you all.' With this he sunk into a very tranquil sieep, and indeed, he scarcely afterwards gave any sign of consciousness, except for an ins ant on the arrival of his sons. They, on learning that the scene was about to close, obtained a new leave of absence from their posts, and both reached Abbotsford on the 19th .-About half past one P. M. on the 21st of September, Sir Walter breathed his last in the presence of all his children It was a beautiful day, so warm that all the windows were wide open, and so perfectly still that the sound of all others most delicious to his car, the gentle ripple of the Tweed over its pebbles, was distinctly audible as we knell around the bed and his eldest son kissed and closed his eyes."

The court yard and all the precincts of Abbotsford were crowded with uncoverered spectators as the procession was arranged; and as it advanced through Darnick and Melrose, & the adjacent villages, the whole had formed its third joint, thus proving to population appeared at their doors in like the farmer, that the curse of the Hessian manner, almost all in black. The train of fly had been removed from him. In Montcarriages extended, I understand, over more gomery and Baltimore counties, whose soil han a mile; the Yeemanry followed in great is weak and better adapted to Indian Corn, the day ere we reached Dryburg. Some accident it was observed, had caused the hearse to balt for several minutes on the summit of the hill at Bemereide, exactly where a prospect of remarkable richness opens, and where Sir Walter had alway been accustomed to rein up his horse. The day was dark and lowering, and the wind

The funeral-

The wide enclosure of the Abbey of Dryburg was thronged with old and young. and when the coffin was taken from the hearse, and again laid on the shoulders of the afflicted serving men, one deep sob burst from a thousand lips. Mr. Archdea-con Williams read the burial service of the Church of England; and thus about half past 5 o'clock in the evening of Wednesday the 26th September, 1832, the remains of Sir Walter were laid by the side of his wife, in the sepulchre of his ancestors. So fades, so languishes, grows dim and dies All that this world is proud of?

RALEIGH, May 24. The cases of Sheridan, (captain,) and Crocker one of the crew, charged with cast-ing away the schr Aurora, off the coast of North Carolina, occupied the attention of the Court on Tuesday, and excited a good deal of interest. Their object was to get possession of $4,000 in specie sent from Havana to the Spanish Consul at N. York. For this purpose, the vessel was run ashore upon the coast of Cape Hatteras, the money taken out and embezzled by the Capt. who proceeded to New York, and informed the Consul that the vessel was driven astore, and the money was stolen from hi trunk, while he was attempting to convey it from thence to New York; for delivery upon which the prisoners were arrested and sent to this city for trial. Several legal questions were raised and ably argued by their counsel. It was contended, 1st, that the act was not committed on the high seas, as charged in the indictment, but on waters within the limits of North Carolina, over which the United States had no jurisdiction 2dly, if otherwise, then the act of Congress required that the prisoners should be tried in the State where they were first carried or arrested, to wit: New York. 3d, that there was not an netual casting away, as the vessel was again set affoat in condition to perform her voyage. The only question for the jury to decide was that of fact, as to the casting away-upon which they could not agree, and a verdict of acquittal was entered for the prisoners

On Monday, Sheridan was put upon his trial for Larceny, and confessed his guilt -As he had restored the money, the Consul commended him to the mercy of the Court He was remanded to prison to await judgment at the next term.

PHILADELPHIA, May 24. Shippercek .- We learn from a French paper, that the captain of the corvene He oine, now on a cruise in the South Seas has sent home an account of the shipwrek of two American vessels, the Atlas and the Colossus, which were lost last year among the Crozet Islands, south of the Cape of Good Hope. The shipwrecked men to the number of thirty-six, were thrown upon a desert rock 500 leagues from any inhabited land, where they passed the winter (summer of 1837.) They set aside all the provisions which could be saved, for exigencies; lived on sea fowl, and constructed a rouse from the wre k of the vessels to protect them from the severity of the weather. Capt. Barnum, commander of the Aslas had resolved to go to the Cape in a frail boat for assistance, but was prevented from undertaking his perilous voyage by the arrival of the Heroine, by which vessel the unfortugate men were saved .- Gaz.

PENSACOLA, May 19. The seamen of the late expedition to S. Florida, arrived on the 2nd May, in the schr. Heroine from Key West. The expedition has been upon the Eastern coast during the winter, co-operating with the Northera column of the army-the last expedition was made in company with Colonel the best judges, at least 2 seconds faster per Banknead and Major Landerdale, into the mile than the Central, Bailie Peyton's heat everglades. They found Sam Jones on the Pine Islands but the Indians escaped it will compare with the races in England in the night, the troops having landed after sunset. The war seems to be at a close. Lieut. Powell left his boats and artillery companies at Key Biscaine and Key West, having navigated the coast from Mosquito to the latter place in them. Acting Lieut. Murphy was the only officer accompanying Lieutenant Powell to this place-the remainder having then returned to the North.

NEW YORK, May 25. Non-Resumption. - We are sorry to say that the hopes ensertained recently that the Penasylvania Bank of the United States would speedily resume specie payments, are very much dissipated. It is now sup-posed that such an event will not happen until the rising of Congress, or the autumn, or even later. As a general resumption in South and West depends on the movements of this Bank in a great measure, the state of expectation respecting its future course has an important effect on all funds of the nen resuming States. In consequence of the opinion now entertained, all such funds are dull, and have fallen in price materially,-Jour of Com.

Gazette.

NEW YORK, May 23. It is now some days since we favored our readers with any observations on this trade. Intelligence has poured in upon us from all quarters, that the coming crop of wheat is all that the expectant farmer could wish for. This is gratifying; and unless storm, or flood, or drought, or blight, or rust, shall cut off his hopes and leave him in the condition of Virgil's tiller of the ground, the agriculturalist will have cause to rejoice, that a rich harvest has been permitted to fill his barns. Wheat flour, we have no doubt, will form a large portion of our exports the approaching season. The return to such a state of things, will be a sure indication that the labor of the country has been once more reduced to a healthful condition by the late reverses.

In the Maryland wheat district, comprising the rich counties of Frederick and Washington, the plant af our latest advices, or our suffering city, is now in the midst numbers on horseback, and it was late in the fly had, on the contrary, done some harm On the Eastern shore of Maryland, the fields looked generally well. The wild onion was not more injurious than usual. A full crop is anticipated.

We hear that the wheat in the Shenanloah Valley, Va., looked prosperously as late as the 12th inst The farmers were in high gice at the prospect of full pockets during the coming fall and winter.

The Ohio wheat counties are said to be n a splendid condition. Though the spring ias been backward and dry, the roots of the plant did not suffer from the winds, as the ground did not freeze dry. The reports rom Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Illinois. and Missouri, all speak of vigorously growing crops .- Whig.

NEW YORK, May 24 The suspicious arrival at Newport .- We gather from Hale's New-Book, the following facts relative to the French ship Alex ander, the arrival of which vessel at New port was reported in our ship news vesterday, as taken from a slip from a Newport

On the pilot, revenue officers, and French Vice Consul going on board, they were treated with great indignity by the Commander, who was formerly an inferior officer on board, and who represents himself as brother of the owner in Bordeaux. After a good deal of delay, however, he stated that her former captain, and seven men, had been lost overboard in a gale-that when the vessel was loaded, the captain had liberty to go where he pleased to sell the cargo-that he was not bound to any par ticular port, and that he did not know what right any body had to question him on the

From after examination it appeared that the persons lost "went overboard singly;" and two sailors (one an American, the other an Englishman) told several persons that in a few days the whole of a curious story would probably leak out. These two men were paid off immediately on the arrival of the ship at Newport, and were discharged

The captain refused to show his papers to the authorities, or to give any information willingly respecting the vessel. There were two females (Malays or Bourbonese) found on board, who it was said, were discovered secreted, sometime after the vessel sailed.

The first thing the captain did on arri ving at Newport, was to offer to sell his ship and cargo very cheap for cash as he was anxious to go to Boston. This, however, he could not effect, as in consequence of the extraordinary appearance of the affair, it was beemed prudent by the Vice Consul and U. S. Marshal, to put restraint ipon the officers and vessel, until advices could be received from the Consulate here.

Yesterday forenoon the Consul General eccived a full account of the business from he Consul at Newport, and his statement confirms, in every particular, the report on the News Book. He has also taken the necessary steps to have the affair brought o a judical investigation .- Express.

We understand that Mr. J. B. Kendall has sold his horse Bailie Peyton, to Mr. John Heth of Va. for $8000, The great rac. on Friday placed this horse at the head of the American turf, for it was very manifest to all who saw the race that, had he been ridden by a boy of proper weight, he would have taken the second heat, although out of order-suffering, in fact under the distemper which broke out on him on Satarday. Mr. Heith will take him home to Varginia to-day, and turn him out. Next fall when he comes on the turf, "in good order and well conditioned" he will rank he best among the best.

No heat of four miles, since the Henry and Eclipse match, can compare with that made by Builie Peyton in 7m 424s,-in which he fed from end to end, and was never touched with whip or spur Indeed taking into consideration the difference of the tracks-that at Long Island, where Henry and Eclipse run, being considered by is the best ever made in this country. How may be inferred from the notice taken by English westers of Lady Clifden's race last fall at the Island. The heat which she ran in 7m. 434s is described by them as a 'won derful one' "indeed miraculous" they say is a better term for it," and they acknowl edge that they must search their racing annals some time "before they can match such doings." What will they say of a horse running a heat in 7m. 424s, whilst suffering under the distemper, and repeating 3 mile in 5m. 50s. If horses go on improving in this way, Flying Childers will come, who will run, what the great horse of that name never did, a mile in a minute.

THE GRAND PROJECT AT LAST .- OF yesterday Mr. Clay presented to the Senate the outlines of his grand National Bank scheme;

First. It is to have a capital of Fifty Millions of Dollars. Second. This is to be taken by the Federal and State Governments, or if thought advisable, individuals are to be allowed to take a part, -the stock being offered in market overt. Third, The interest to be not more than six per cent, with a prospective diminution Fourth. The capital to be entirely domestic, foreigners being excluded from holding any directly or indirectly. Fifth. The books &c. of the bank to be open to the inspection of any and every person-and regular returns to be made. Sixth The bill holders to be secured by investitures to be made by the bank in permament stock of some kind or other. There were seven heads, (the exact number of the Beast,) but we fo get the last. - Chronicle.

A letter from Vienua of the 15th of April says, "It is affirmed that the Hungarian dress ordered by Prince Esterhazy for the Coronation of Queen Victoria, will cost half a million of florins. I can believe this, since the Brandebourg alone, adorned with silver and diamonds, cost 80,000 florins.,'

Rapidly acquired Fortunes for Political Speculators .- The informers in the case of goods, seized at the Custom Houses recently, will pocket half the value, i. e. about $150, 000.—Ibid.

The Hon Levy Woodbury, Secretary of the Treasury, is appointed Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of New Hampshire.
